Re: Mike Brown

To Whom It May Concern:

Mr. Brown was evaluated in my office on 02/21/08. He is a left short Transfemoral amputee. His amputation was due to a traumatic injury in 1999. His current prosthesis is ill fitting and does not provide the proper knee stability for safe/controlled ambulation. He states he has fallen numerous times with this prosthesis and is now afraid to use it. He seems to be a good candidate for a C-leg Transfemoral prosthesis. With the added stability of the electronic knee he would be able to ambulate with greater safety and confidence. It still will take a major effort on his part. He will also require months of physical therapy for gait training. The estimated cost of the prosthesis is about $50,000.

If you have any questions or concerns, please call me at 949-583-9667.

Thank you,

M. Garry Yamamoto
